Simon P. Ellis : Roman Housing (Duckworth Archaeology) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Roman Housing (Duckworth Archaeology):

Illustrated and provided with a glossary and site index, this text examines the archaeology of housing throughout the Roman world. This breadth of scale enables the author to set local developments within the overall context of social change in the empire, making the book of value to all with an interest in the culture and history of Rome.

"A wide-ranging and up-to-date survey of many of the important issues in the archaeology of the ancient Roman house." --Timothy O'Sullivan, Bryn Mawr Classical Review
About the Author: Simon P. Ellis was a Director of Excavations at Carthage 1976-88 and now works for UNESCO Institute for Statistics in Montreal.
