Manuscript-carrying Vina-player to the Weapon-wielding Defender of the Dharma (Brill's Indological Library):

This is a fascinating depiction of the transformation of the Indian riverine goddess from the manuscript-carrying v-player to the Buddhist weapon-wielding defender of the Dharma. Drawing on Sanskrit and Chinese textual sources, as well as Hindu, Jain, and Buddhist art historical representations, this book traces the conceptual and iconographic development of the riverine goddess of knowledge Sarasvat from some time after 1750 B.C.E. to the seventh century C.E. Through the study of Chinese translations of no longer extant Sanskrit versions of the Buddhist Sutra of Golden Light the author sheds light on Sarasvat's interactions with other Indian goddess cults and their impact on one another.

..a significant and valuable contribution.(...) Scholars concerned with the portrayal of Sarasvat or any other goddess in specific Indic textual traditions will find the volume an invaluable tool for searching out comparisons or broader historical and cultural contexts." - Elizabeth M.
