

(Download free ebook) Studies in Islamic History and Institutions

Studies in Islamic History and Institutions

S. D Goitein

*ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

#10024613 in Books 1968PDF # 1 #File Name: B0007ILNME391 pages | File size: 66.Mb

S. D Goitein : Studies in Islamic History and Institutions before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Studies in Islamic History and Institutions:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Early Islamic HistoryBy William Garrison Jr."Studies in Islamic History and Institutions" by Shelomo Dov Goitein (1966 2009). (Publisher's notes): `Goitein's selection of studies dealing with Islamic history, religion, and institutions offers a wide-ranging, sensitive, and highly original introduction to a civilization by one who lived all his life studying and observing Islam. Eschewing simplistic notions, Goitein poses fundamental questions vis--vis Muslim religious thought and practice, the evolution of the Islamic state in the early Middle Ages, the characteristic facets of the civilization, and the periodization of its history. Although all but one of the essays deal with the first seven centuries of Islamic history, Goitein frequently draws important connections between the past and the present. Chapters: (1) The Four Faces of Islam; (2) The Intermediate civilization/The Hellenic Heritage in Islam; (3) Prayer in Islam; (4) Ramadan; (5) The origins and nature of the Muslim Friday worship; (6) The Birth-Hour of Muslim Law; (7) The sanctity of Jerusalem and Palestine in Early Islam; (8) A Turning-Point in the history of the Muslim State; (9) The origin of the Vizierate and its True character; (10) Attitudes towards government in Islam Judaism; (11) The Middle Eastern Bourgeoisie in Early Islamic times; (12) The Mentality of the Middle Class in Medieval Islam; (13) The working people of the Mediterranean and its Muslim trade; (14) Cairo Genize documents; (15) The unity of the Mediterranean world in the `Middle' Middle Ages; (16) Medieval Tunisia: Hub of the Arab World); (17) Letters and documents in the India trade in Medieval times; (18) The beginnings of the Karim merchants; (19) The present day Arabic proverb as a testimony to the Social Body of the Middle East. With a new foreword by

Norman A. Stillman. [Shelomo Dov Goitein (1900 - 1985) was born in the village Burgkundstadt in southern Germany. He attended the universities of Frankfurt and Berlin, where he studied Islamic history under Joseph Horowitz; obtaining his doctoral degree in 1923. In 1928, he was appointed Professor of Islamic History and Islamic Studies at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, where he founded the School of Asian and African studies and the Israel Oriental Society. In 1938-1948, he served as Senior Education Officer in Mandatory Palestine. From 1948, he began his life's work, "A Mediterranean Society: The Jewish Communities of the Arab World as Portrayed in the Documents of the Cairo Geniza." Goitein moved to the United States in 1957 and continued his work at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton.]'

Goitein's selection of studies dealing with Islamic history, religion, and institutions offers a wide-ranging, sensitive, and highly original introduction to a civilization by one who lived all his life studying and observing Islam. Eschewing simplistic notions, Goitein poses fundamental questions vis-a-vis Muslim religious thought and practice, the evolution of the Islamic state in the early Middle Ages, the characteristic facets of the civilization, and the periodization of its history. Although all but one of the essays deal with the first seven centuries of Islamic history, Goitein frequently draws important connections between the past and the present. A professional educator as well as researcher and scholar, Goitein with a clarity and orderliness makes his subtly reasoned conclusions accessible to students and scholars alike. He provides the reader with an opportunity to acquaint himself not only with the results of research, but also with the methods by which they were obtained. With a new foreword by Norman A. Stillman.

From the Back CoverGoitein s selection of studies dealing with Islamic history, religion, and institutions offers a wide-ranging, sensitive, and highly original introduction to a civilization by one who lived all his life studying and observing Islam. Eschewing simplistic notions, Goitein poses fundamental questions vis- -vis Muslim religious thought and practice, the evolution of the Islamic state in the early Middle Ages, the characteristic facets of the civilization, and the periodization of its history. Although all but one of the essays deal with the first seven centuries of Islamic history, Goitein frequently draws important connections between the past and the present. A professional educator as well as researcher and scholar, Goitein with a clarity and orderliness makes his subtly reasoned conclusions accessible to students and scholars alike. He provides the reader with an opportunity to acquaint himself not only with the results of research, but also with the methods by which they were obtained. With a new foreword by Norman A. Stillman,About the AuthorShelomo Dov Goitein (1900 - 1985) was born in the village Burgkundstadt in southern Germany. He attended the universities of Frankfurt and Berlin, where he studied Islamic history under Joseph Horowitz; obtaining his doctoral degree in 1923. In 1928, he was appointed Professor of Islamic History and Islamic Studies at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, where he founded the School of Asian and African studies and the Israel Oriental Society. In 1938-1948, he served as Senior Education Officer in Mandatory Palestine. From 1948, he began his life's work, A Mediterranean Society: The Jewish Communities of the Arab World as Portrayed in the Documents of the Cairo Geniza. Goitein moved to the United States in 1957 and continued his work at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton. Goitein was awarded honorary degrees from many universities.