Jok Madut Jok : Sudan: Race, Religion, and Violence before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Sudan: Race, Religion, and Violence:

Ravaged by civil war, and plagued by roaming gangs of rebel and government militia, Sudan and Darfur are rarely out of the news. Hundreds of thousands of people have been killed, over two million have fled their homes, and rape, humanitarian crises and state-sponsored genocide are all rife. In this groundbreaking investigation, Jok Madut Jok delves deep into Sudan's culture and history, isolating the factors that have caused its fractured national identity. With moving first-hand testimonies, Jok provides a decisive critique of a country in turmoil, and addresses what must be done to break the tragic cycle of racism, poverty, and brutality that grips Sudan and its people.

'Masterful and intense; passionately critical and solidly informed - Jok Madut Jok has done it again with his very current and poignant Sudan: Race, Religion and Violence.' -- Richard Lobban - Professor and Chair of Anthropology, Rhode Island College 'A valuable and unique contribution to the literature on Sudan.' -- Peter Woodward - Professor of Politics, University of Reading, and author of Sudan 1898-1989: The Unstable State 'A powerful and exhaustively documented account ... It should be read by all those concerned with the future of Sudan.' -- John Ryle - Chairman of the Rift Valley Institute and Legrand Ramsey Professor of Anthropology, Bard College, NY About the Author Jok Madut Jok is cofounder of the Sudd Institute. Born and raised in Sudan, he studied in Egypt and the United States. He is trained in the anthropology of health and holds a Ph.D. from the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA). Jok recently joined the Government of South Sudan as undersecretary in the Ministry of Culture and Heritage. Also the author of War and Slavery in Sudan, he is a professor in the department of history at Loyola Marymount University in California, and he has worked in aid and development, first as a humanitarian aid worker and as a consultant for a number of aid agencies.
