time, and all praised The Cultural Dimension of Peace: Decentralization and Reconciliation in Indonesia (Rethinking Peace and Conflict Studies):

This study outlines the emerging cultural turn in Peace Studies and provides a critical understanding of the cultural dimension of reconciliation. Taking an anthropological view on decentralization and peacebuilding in Indonesia, it sets new standards for an interdisciplinary research field.

Birgit Bruchler has written an excellent monograph on the potential of culture for reconciliation . The book covers new ground in the ongoing debate over scope conditions for sustainable peacebuilding. It is a rich source of material for scholars and practitioners seeking to understand how the revival of cultural traditions can foster a normalisation of social relations at an everyday level of interaction in post-conflict settings.
