The best resource aroundBy Mm6580Because all entries are submitted by industry professionals the listings are very comprehensive and numerous for all sorts of obscure and familiar items alike.

Now published on a biannual basis, this reference book is packed with more than 5,000 company entries from across the country. The Entertainment Sourcebook is an insider's guide to finding any item imaginable, be it a Civil War sabre, an animal to rent, a Greek fisherman's hat, authentic Amish clothing, 19th-century chandeliers, or human skulls. Whether you need African imported goods, china, crystal and glassware, or plumbing supplies and fixtures, this book includes the resources you'll need to find them. In addition to the hundreds of pages of products and services listings organized by category, this edition features a company index, a product index, and appendices that include Web resources, support services, professional organizations, and more. The Entertainment Sourcebook 2009 is useful for anyone planning an event (even a wedding!) and indispensable for those who work in theatre, film, television, opera and print photography.

Broadway couldn't function without it!- Robin Wagner, set designer When you need to 'pull a rabbit out of your hat,' pull your Sourcebook off the shelf. - Lesley Weston, Costume Shop Head, Metropolitan Opera --Robin Wagner, Lesley Weston
About the Author
The Association of Theatrical Artists and Craftspeople (New York City) is the professional trade association of artists, designers, and craftspeople. Its members are some of the most experienced and sought-after people in the entertainment industry. Their work can be seen on and off Broadway and at regional theatres and opera companies across the country, as well as in feature films, television, print work, and other significant productions around the world.
