JanesA short yet searing account of the experiences of the resistance of the Bund and ZOB, et al in the Warsaw Ghetto. Edelman gives the reader a detailed and heart wrenching account of what happened at the "Umschlagplatz" where hundreds of thousands of Jews were loaded onto cattle cars and then transported to the gas chambers to certain death. The book provides us with rare insights into the desperate conditions (mostly after Jan 1943) of the Ghetto but also documents heroic accounts (many barely adults) to resist an army that had to that point, defeated the armies of most of Europe.

"This remarkable memoir by Marek Edelman, member of the Warsaw Ghetto Resistance five-person command team, tells first-hand of the struggle of Warsaw's Jews against the Nazis in the spring of 1943." 70th Anniversary edition, with a new introduction by John Rose. Marek Edelman. Bookmarks, 2013.
